Early Years and Schools

Introduction to training for early years, childcare and schools... First Response Training works with hundreds of schools, pre-schools, nurseries, childcare agencies, children’s playgroups, and activity centres to deliver a wide range of first aid, health and safety and special focus training in-house for their staff.

Our Curriculum team ensures that training provided for this sector meets relevant standards, such as mapping courses to the criteria set out by the Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS) and Ofsted guidance. Courses are carefully developed to comply with relevant legislation, and external accreditation is available for courses, if required, from national awarding bodies such as Highfield Awarding Body for Compliance (HABC) and IOSH.

First Aid

- Children’s safety is very important for children, as children are a vulnerable group and can be more seriously affected by food poisoning than adults. Children’s first aid procedures, in children’s care, are explained and children in care are taught safe food hygiene. This is all about learning to be safe. First aid training is also easy to understand by children, and children who eat it, stay safe.
